Super Smoke Employee Product Guide

Learn the product families, recognize the exact item, and explain differences clearly to an adult customer who already uses the category.

How to use this guide

Start with the product map, then learn the label checks and flavor language. Practice the conversations with a partner. Use the product directory to look up brands, models and recorded options. No product use is required for training.

Your learning path

Module	What you should be able to do
Product recognition	Tell cigarettes, cigars, oral products, vapes, e-liquids and tobacco accessories apart.
Exact item checks	Confirm brand, model, flavor, labeled strength and package type.
Flavor descriptions	Explain sweetness, cooling, tartness and creaminess without promising a taste.
Customer conversations	Ask useful questions, explain tradeoffs and confirm the exact selection.
Product directory	Find the recorded brand and options without confusing listing with availability.

Edition and coverage

English edition 2 | November 16 2026. The directory was rebuilt from a direct read of the seven product tabs in Super Smoke Inventory on November 16 2026. It is a reference list, not a live stock or approved-for-sale list. Prices, sales rankings and unverified specifications are intentionally omitted.

A useful habit

Say what you know, name the source of a subjective description, and check the label when details matter. Follow the business age verification and approved product procedures before assisting with a restricted purchase.

The product map

Recognize the family before discussing the brand or flavor.

Core product families

Family	Examples in the catalog	Main distinction
Cigarettes	Marlboro, Camel, Newport, American Spirit	Factory made cigarettes; exact line, size and pack matter.
Cigars and cigarillos	Backwoods, Swisher Sweets, Black & Mild, Dutch, Dutch Master	Finished tobacco products; wrapper, format and count vary.
Wraps and leaf	TrueWrap Backwoods, Grabba	Read the package to distinguish wrappers, leaf and finished products.
Dip and snus	Grizzly, Copenhagen, Kodiak, Skoal, Camel Snus	Oral tobacco; cut and portion format matter.
Nicotine pouches	Zyn, Velo, Rogue; Grizzly Nic Pouches	Pouch products distinct from snus; check ingredients and mg per pouch.
Vapes	Geek Bar, Lost Mary, Off Stamp, Foger	Model and hardware format matter as much as flavor.
E liquids	Pod Juice, Juice Head, Vapetasia, Skwezed	Bottled liquid; formulation and device suitability need checking.
Tobacco and tubes	Good Stuff, Largo, Gambler, Top	A tobacco bag or pouch contains tobacco; a tube is an empty component.
Botanicals	OPMS, Krave, Kanva, Feel Free, MIT Therapy	Ingredients and product forms vary; never infer effects from a name.

Catalog labels are not product definitions

The inventory group CIGARETTES also contains cigars and oral products. POUCHES means pouch tobacco in this catalog, not Zyn style nicotine pouches. KRATOM is an inventory grouping; inspect each product ingredient panel.

Cigarettes cigars and wraps

Match the complete product name rather than the package color alone.

Cigarettes

Confirm brand, line, labeled size, menthol or nonmenthol, and package type. King, 100, 99 and 120 are product size labels, not nicotine measurements. A customer saying “the blue one” has not identified a unique item across brands. Use the exact current sheet names, such as Marlboro Gold King and Camel Gold 99, then confirm the physical package.

Customer conversation

“Which brand and size do you normally get?”
“Do you mean menthol or nonmenthol?”
“Are you asking for a pack or a carton?”
“I found the brand. Let me confirm the exact line before I bring it over.”

Cigars and cigarillos

Identify the brand and product family first. Then confirm flavor, wrapper or leaf style, tip style if relevant, and the package count. Do not substitute a leaf version, a tipped version or a different count because the flavor name matches.

Wraps and leaf products

Check whether the package contains a finished smoking product, a wrapper, or leaf tobacco. Similar brand names can appear on different formats. Read the exact package description rather than assuming all items under a familiar cigar brand are cigars.

Practice these distinctions

Customer says	Follow up with
“Marlboro Gold.”	“Which size and package do you want?”
“Backwoods.”	“Which variety and package count?”
“Swisher Leaf Wtaps.”	“Which variety and pack count? Let me match the exact line on the package.”
“The lightest one.”	“Do you mean a particular product name or size?” Do not imply that a color or descriptor makes a product safer.

Dip snus and nicotine pouches

A pouch shape does not tell you whether the product contains tobacco leaf.

Dip

Brands in the catalog include Grizzly, Copenhagen, Kodiak and Skoal. Match the product name, flavor, cut or portion format, and can details. Long cut, fine cut and pouches describe different formats; do not treat them as interchangeable. Grizzly Nic Pouches entries are listed alongside tobacco entries; the brand name alone does not establish ingredients.

Snus

Camel Snus is listed separately as a brand in the source data. Snus is an oral tobacco category. Do not describe it as the same product as a tobacco leaf free nicotine pouch.

Nicotine pouches

Zyn, Velo and Rogue appear in the catalog. Grizzly also has entries explicitly labeled Nic Pouches; distinguish those from its tobacco products. Confirm the exact line, flavor, labeled nicotine per pouch and can count. A strength number without its unit or basis is incomplete. Catalog flavor names may refer to different markets or older records; verify the actual package.

How to clarify the request

Question	Why it matters
“Which brand and product line?”	A brand may include more than one product family; check the full line name.
“Which flavor and labeled strength?”	Mint names and strength options differ.
“Do you want loose tobacco or a portioned product?”	Prevents format confusion.
“May I check the label on your current product?”	Avoids guessing a replacement or equivalence.

Customer language

“These are different product categories. I can show you the ingredient and strength labels so you can compare the exact products.”
Do not choose a higher nicotine level for the customer or claim that one pouch equals a cigarette.

Vape models kits and replacement pods

A familiar flavor name is not enough to identify compatible hardware.

The hardware check

Item type	What to establish
All in one prefilled device	Is the liquid unit replaceable? Rechargeable does not mean refillable.
Starter kit	Does this package include the required battery or dock? Check the contents panel.
Replacement pod	Which exact device does it fit? Does the customer already have that device?
Bottled e liquid	Is the customer asking for liquid for a refillable device rather than a prefilled pod?

Model names to recognize

Geek Bar catalog labels include Pulse, Pulse X, Pulse 2, Pulse X 2 and Mate 60K. Lost Mary labels include 15K, 35K Turbo and Nera Fullview. Off Stamp X Cube, Off Stamp X Cube Crystal and Foger Switch Pro also appear. A larger number or similar shape does not establish compatibility.

Nera Fullview example

The manufacturer describes a replaceable pod system. The local update explicitly separates Kit and Pod entries. Ask: “Do you already have the Nera Fullview battery device, or are you looking for the kit?” Confirm the exact package contents. [S3]

Before handing over an item

Read back the brand, exact model, flavor and package type. Inspect the strength label. Do not promise the printed puff number as a guaranteed number of days; duration depends on use. Use manufacturer instructions for setup and charging rather than improvising.

Useful wording

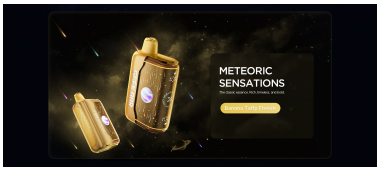

“The flavor names match, but these are different models. Let me confirm which one you have.”
“This is the replacement pod package. Let us check that it matches your device.”

Recognize the packaging

Use these existing catalog photographs to practice reading the model and product line. Photos are representative identification aids; packaging can change.

GEEK BAR PULSE 2 Berry Bliss

GEEK BAR PULSE X 2 Banana Taffy Freeze

Juice Head Classics Classics - Apple Watermelon 100ML

Vapetasia Killer Kustard

LOST MARY MT35000 TURBO Pink Lemonade

Kanva Botanicals Botanical Products Focus + Flow

Read the text before the color

Find the manufacturer, product line and flavor. On bottles, find the formulation, strength and volume. On modular systems, look for Kit or Pod wording. A picture of a single pod does not prove a battery is included.

Photo exercise

Point to two different Geek Bar models. Identify an e-liquid bottle. Identify a botanical product. Explain which details you would still need to inspect on the physical package. These photos are not used as evidence for the flavor reviews on the following pages.

Describe flavor in useful words

Use clear taste vocabulary instead of “good,” “strong” or “the best.” Taste descriptions are subjective.

Five flavor questions

Dimension	Useful wording	Ask the customer
Main flavor	Mango, peach, berry, mint, vanilla custard	“Which flavor family do you normally prefer?”
Sweetness	Less sweet, sweet, candy like	“Do you like candy style flavors or less sweetness?”
Cooling	Light, moderate or pronounced cooling	“Do you want an icy finish?”
Tartness	A little tangy, sweet tart, sour	“Do you like tart flavors?”
Texture or impression	Creamy, dessert style, crisp fruit	“Do you prefer creamy or fruit focused flavors?”

Keep the words separate

Sweetness is not nicotine strength. Cooling is not a nicotine measurement. “Smooth” is a subjective impression, not a safety claim. “Ice” suggests a cooling theme but does not tell you a measured cooling level. “Clear” does not prove unflavored or nicotine free.

A simple description template

“This is a [main flavor] profile with [sweetness or tartness] and [cooling]. A reviewer describes it that way, but taste can vary. Is that close to what you normally like?”

How to read the next pages

REVIEW means one editorial reviewer description. COMMUNITY means individual anecdotes, not a survey. OFFICIAL means manufacturer flavor positioning. FOLLOW UP is a training question written for staff. No star rating or popularity ranking is inferred.

Geek Bar Pulse flavor conversations

Use the exact model shown. Review descriptions are subjective; the questions below are staff practice prompts.

Mexico Mango | REVIEW S2

Geek Bar Pulse
Ripe, very sweet mango; little cooling.
Say: “This has a sweet mango profile with a light cool finish.”
Follow up: “Are you looking for mango on its own or a fruit blend?”

Strawberry Mango | REVIEW S2

Geek Bar Pulse
Strawberry and a gentler mango note; light cooling.
Say: “This combines strawberry and mango, with light cooling.”
Follow up: “Would you prefer a blend rather than a single fruit?”

Juicy Peach Ice | REVIEW S2

Geek Bar Pulse
Sweet peach with noticeable cooling; reviewer wording varies between sections.
Say: “This is a sweet peach profile with an icy finish.”
Follow up: “How much cooling do you usually like?”

Grape Blow Pop | REVIEW S2

Geek Bar Pulse
Sweet grape, a creamy candy impression and moderate cooling.
Say: “This is grape with a candy style sweetness and cooling.”
Follow up: “Do you prefer candy grape or a less sweet profile?”

Keep the comparison honest

These profiles do not establish a best flavor, a sales ranking or an identical taste in another model. Offer the description as a starting point and let the customer decide. Confirm the exact label and current availability.

Nera Fullview flavor conversations

Use the exact model shown. Review descriptions are subjective; the questions below are staff practice prompts.

Dragon Strawnana | REVIEW S4

Lost Mary Nera Fullview
Banana, strawberry and dragon fruit; light cooling.
Say: “This blends banana and strawberry with dragon fruit and light ice.”
Follow up: “Do you like banana in a fruit blend?”

Scary Berry | REVIEW S4

Lost Mary Nera Fullview
Sweet tart mixed berries, candy impression, light cooling.
Say: “This is a sweet tart berry blend with a light cool finish.”
Follow up: “Do you enjoy tart berry flavors?”

Pomegranate Blast | REVIEW S4

Lost Mary Nera Fullview
Sweet tart pomegranate and pronounced cooling.
Say: “This pairs pomegranate tang with a stronger icy finish.”
Follow up: “Are you comfortable with more noticeable cooling?”

Pink Lemonade | REVIEW S4

Lost Mary Nera Fullview
Lemonade profile with light cooling.
Say: “This has a lemonade profile and a lightly cool finish.”
Follow up: “Are you after a citrus style rather than berries?”

Blue Razz Ice | REVIEW S4

Lost Mary Nera Fullview
Sweet blue raspberry with moderate cooling.
Say: “This has sweet blue raspberry flavor and a medium icy finish.”
Follow up: “Do you want both sweetness and cooling?”

Keep the comparison honest

These profiles do not establish a best flavor, a sales ranking or an identical taste in another model. Offer the description as a starting point and let the customer decide. Confirm the exact label and current availability.

E liquid flavor conversations

Use the exact model shown. Review descriptions are subjective; the questions below are staff practice prompts.

Killer Kustard | OFFICIAL S6

Vapetasia
Vanilla custard dessert profile.
Say: “The manufacturer describes this as a vanilla custard flavor.”
Follow up: “Do you prefer a dessert profile to fruit or mint?”

Killer Kustard Strawberry | OFFICIAL S6

Vapetasia
Strawberry with vanilla custard.
Say: “This adds strawberry to a vanilla custard profile.”
Follow up: “Would you prefer fruit with a creamy dessert base?”

Melons and Iced Melons | OFFICIAL S6

Vapetasia
Cantaloupe, watermelon and honeydew; Iced adds cooling.
Say: “Both are melon blends; the Iced version adds a cool finish.”
Follow up: “Would you like the cooling version or the regular one?”

Keep the comparison honest

These profiles do not establish a best flavor, a sales ranking or an identical taste in another model. Offer the description as a starting point and let the customer decide. Confirm the exact label and current availability.

What customer feedback can and cannot tell you

Use feedback to explain possible taste differences and tradeoffs. Never describe a few comments as what everyone thinks.

Geek Bar Pulse mixed preferences | COMMUNITY S7

One thread includes positive comments about Mexico Mango, White Gummy Ice and Miami Mint, but also strong dislike of Juicy Peach Ice and White Gummy Ice. The useful lesson is disagreement, not a winner. Say: “People differ on sweetness and aftertaste. What did you like or dislike about your last flavor?”

Pod Juice Jewel Mint variants | HISTORICAL COMMUNITY S8

Older users discuss Jewel Mint Sapphire and Jewel Mint Diamond, with sweetness a key difference. These are historical anecdotes, not verified current formulations. Do not promise that a current bottle is unsweetened or identical to a discontinued product. Read the exact variant label.

Juice Head Strawberry Kiwi | COMMUNITY S9 S10

A brand initiated discussion includes a favorable Strawberry Kiwi preference; a separate thread includes unpleasant taste reports. Formulation and device context are not consistent. Say: “There are mixed individual reports. Let us confirm the exact line and what taste you are trying to avoid.”

Do not turn complaints into failure rates

One report of leaking, burnt taste or short battery life is not a defect rate. Separate taste preference from a possible faulty item. Record the exact model and batch information if available, and follow the return procedure.

Evidence limits

Community evidence here comes from search excerpts because full thread retrieval was unavailable. It is used only to illustrate individual preferences. The editorial flavor cards rely on readable review pages. None of these sources is a representative customer survey; commercial reviews may have affiliate incentives.

E liquids tobacco and tubes

Identify the product before comparing flavors or formats.

E liquid label checks

Read brand, line, flavor, bottle volume, nicotine formulation and labeled concentration. Salt and freebase versions can share a flavor name. A small bottle is not proof that it is nicotine salt. Match device requirements using manufacturer guidance; do not guess from flavor or bottle size.

Brands to recognize

Cloud Nurdz, Coastal Clouds, Daze, Jam Monster, Reds Apple, Juice Head, Naked, Pod Juice, OXBAR, RAZ, SadBoy, Shijin, Skwezed, Vapetasia and Yogi are recorded. Some names also occur in other product categories; say “the bottled e-liquid” when clarification is needed.

E liquid conversation

“Which device do you use, and which liquid line and labeled concentration do you normally buy?”
“The flavor name matches, but let me check whether this is the same formulation.”

Bagged and pouch tobacco

Good Stuff, Largo, Gambler and other brands appear in Bags. Top, Captain Black, American Spirit and Peter Stokkebye appear in Pouches. Read the declared tobacco type and net weight. Do not infer the intended use from a catalog folder name.

Empty tubes

Top, Gambler, Premier, Golden Harvest and other brands appear in Tubes. A tube contains no loose tobacco. Confirm labeled size, filter style, variant and box count. Do not assume a universal carton or box quantity.

Useful clarification

“Are you looking for tobacco, empty tubes, or both?”
“Which labeled size and box count do you need?”

Kratom and related botanical products

Explain the label and product form. Avoid recommending effects, doses or combinations.

Forms to recognize

The catalog includes powders, capsules, extracts and liquid products. A capsule count measures units, not extract equivalence. A liquid volume does not measure potency. A number printed on the front may refer to a specific compound or serving basis; read the full label.

Brand names are not ingredient lists

OPMS, Klarity, Bumble Bee, Krave, Remarkable Herbs, Feel Free, Kanva, Maxx Out and MIT Therapy appear in the source group. Do not assume every item has the same ingredients or that a brand color predicts an effect.

Two ingredient examples | OFFICIAL S11 S12

Kanva Focus and Flow is described by its manufacturer as a kava and kratom extract blend. Feel Free Classic is described by its manufacturer as containing kava and whole leaf kratom. This does not describe every product sold by either brand. Check the current item label.

How to answer an ingredient question

“Let us read the ingredient panel on this exact product. The product name alone does not tell us what it contains.”

How to handle an effects or dose question

“I can explain the package information, but I cannot recommend a dose or advise on medical effects or interactions. Please ask a qualified healthcare professional.”

Avoid unsupported language

Do not describe these products as treatment for pain, anxiety, withdrawal or sleep problems. Do not use “safe alternative,” “nonaddictive” or strength comparisons between unlike products. Customer experience stories are not evidence of a medical benefit.

Customer conversations that stay accurate

Listen first, describe a relevant difference, then confirm the item. Avoid pressure or escalating nicotine strength.

A repeatable conversation

Step	Example
Identify the request	“Are you looking for the same product you already use?”
Identify preferences	“What do you like about that flavor? Anything you want to avoid?”
Check the hardware	“Which model do you have? Is it a kit or a replacement pod?”
Explain one or two differences	“These differ in cooling and fruit profile. Here is what the descriptions say.”
Check the label	“Let us confirm the formulation and labeled strength.”
Read back the selection	“That is this brand, this model, this flavor and this package type, correct?”

When the exact item is unavailable

“We do not have that exact item available. If you want, I can explain how another listed option differs.” Do not present a different model, ingredient blend or strength as an equivalent.

When asked for the most popular flavor

“I do not have a verified sales ranking. I can compare flavor profiles based on what you normally like.”

When you have not tried it

“I have not personally tried it. The manufacturer describes it as ...” or “One reviewer describes it as ...” Never imply firsthand experience.

When feedback conflicts

“Some users like the sweetness; others find it too much. Is sweetness something you enjoy or avoid?” Use this only where the cited evidence actually supports that contrast.

Practice and knowledge check

Answer aloud before opening the answer key. A trainer can use real packages without opening them.

1

A customer asks for a blue pack. What information is missing?

2

A customer has a Nera Fullview and wants a new flavor. What must you check?

3

Does rechargeable mean refillable?

4

Is the POUCHES directory a list of nicotine pouches?

5

Does a sweet flavor imply lower nicotine?

6

How should you describe a flavor you have not tried?

Role play A

An existing customer likes mango but dislikes a strong icy finish. Use a model specific review card to explain the recorded taste profile, ask one follow up question, and check the exact product label.

Role play B

A customer says “I need a Lost Mary refill.” Identify the device before selecting any pod. Explain why brand alone is insufficient.

Practice and trainer answer key

Use understanding and accurate checks as the standard, rather than memorizing flavor names.

7

Can the Pulse flavor review be applied to Pulse X 2 automatically?

8

A customer wants the highest rated item. Can you use one comment as a ranking?

9

What is the difference between a tobacco pouch and empty tubes?

10

Can you promise a botanical product will help anxiety or choose a dose?

11

Does the directory guarantee an item is in stock?

12

What should you do before suggesting an unavailable product alternative?

Trainer assessment

Ask the employee to identify five packages, distinguish two similar models, explain two flavor profiles with source attribution, and complete a kit versus pod conversation. Repeat any task where they guess compatibility, imply a health benefit or omit an essential label check.

Answer key 1 to 6

1. Brand, exact line, size, menthol status and package type as applicable.
2. Whether they need compatible replacement pods or a kit, plus exact model, flavor and labeled strength.
3. No. Check the manufacturer description of the exact model.
4. No. In this source it is pouch tobacco. Zyn and other oral items are under the broader CIGARETTES source group.
5. No. Taste and labeled nicotine concentration are different properties.
6. Attribute it to the manufacturer or reviewer and make clear that taste varies.

Answer key 7 to 12

7. No. A shared flavor name does not establish an identical formulation or experience.
8. No. Explain the available evidence and ask about their preferences.
9. The pouch contains tobacco; tubes are empty components. Verify the individual labels.
10. No. Explain the label only and refer medical or dosing questions to a qualified professional.
11. No. It is a dated reference list, not live inventory.
12. Explain differences and verify format, model compatibility, formulation and label details; let the customer decide.

Current catalog examples to recognize

These examples use the exact names in the current Google Sheet. Read package labels before comparing ingredients or strength.

Cigarette names

Marlboro Gold King, Menthol Gold King and Silver King are separate entries. Camel Gold 99 is a current entry. Match the complete name and size; do not substitute based on an older color nickname.

Cigars and wraps

Dutch and Dutch Master are separate source columns. Dutch Master lists Palma; Dutch lists varieties including Diamond Fusion and Blue Razz. Swisher Leaf Wtaps lists 3pk Irish Cream, 3pk Dark, 3pk Original and 3pk Smooth. Preserve the source spelling while checking the physical package.

Grizzly product lines

The source includes Wintergreen Long Cut and Wintergreen Pouches, as well as Wintergreen Nic Pouches with labeled mg variants. The word Pouches alone is not enough. Ask for the exact product name and inspect the ingredient panel.

Capsule counts and powder weights

BUMBLE BEE capsule entries now explicitly include 40ct among their count options. KRAVE names include Powder or Capsules with sizes in parentheses. MAXX OUT lists Special Blend separately from its other names. Do not assume an older strain name is an equivalent.

MIT Therapy product lines

Traditional and Enhanced are distinct names in the sheet. For example, Green Maeng Da has Traditional Powder and Traditional Capsules entries, while Mixed Maeng Da has Enhanced Powder and Enhanced Capsules entries. Confirm the full line, form and package size; no effect or potency comparison is inferred.

Bag and tube size headers

Bags has size headers 16 oz, 6 oz, 2 oz, 3 oz and 1 oz. Tubes has King and 100 mm headers. These are sheet columns, not proof that every brand and product comes in every size. Pouches has a Count column; check the package for the actual count.

Updating the guide

Refresh the directory from a verified catalog export. Review aliases, market specific products and discontinued entries before using it as a stocking list. Update the exact model flavor evidence when formulations or packaging change. Do not turn an unverified name into a taste claim.
